

Gadgets guide

a guide to the electrical and mechanical fittings around the home

...information made easy

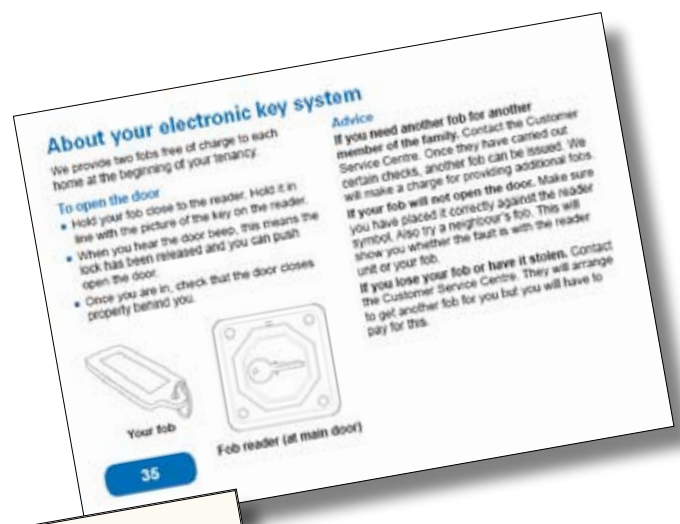

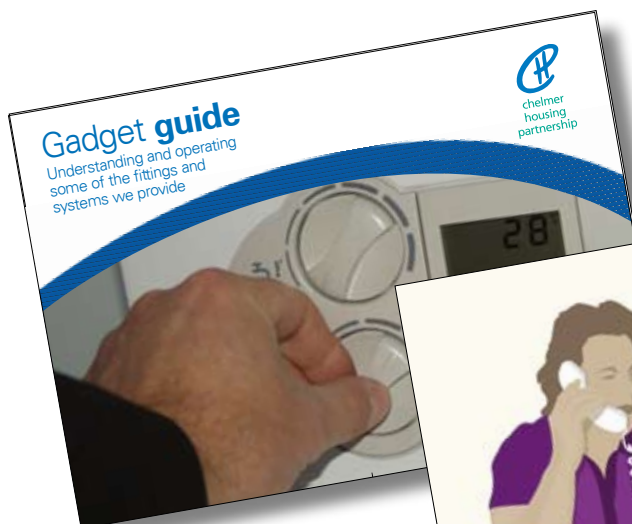

Heating systems, smoke detectors, door entry phones and alarms. These are only some of the fittings and systems installed in modern homes and they are not always particularly easy to understand. When people move into a new home or when something goes wrong it is important that the householder is able to see if they can sort it out themselves - rather than necessarily assuming that you need to call out an engineer.

The Gadgets Guide explains:

- how these fittings and systems work
- how to look after them and use them efficiently
- how to solve typical problems.

Easy to follow, written in clear, jargon-free language and with bold simple layout, this book sets out to inform and instruct. It doesn't get into anything too complicated.

“When you move in the last thing you are thinking about is how everything works. This guide is a lifesaver because you can read it slowly and work it out for yourself in your own time.”

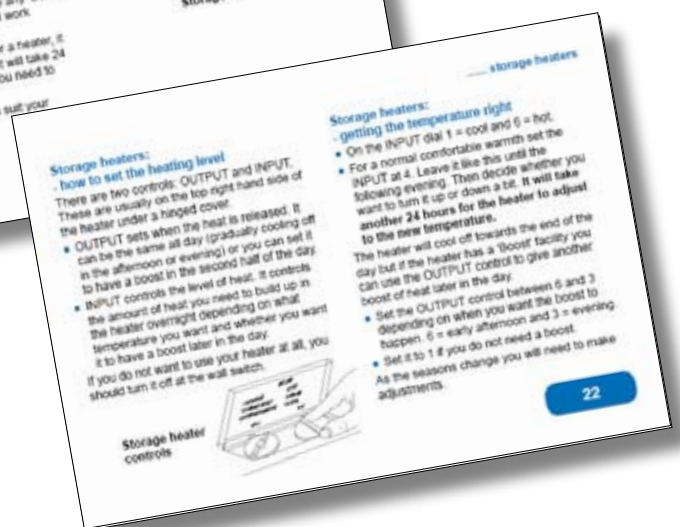

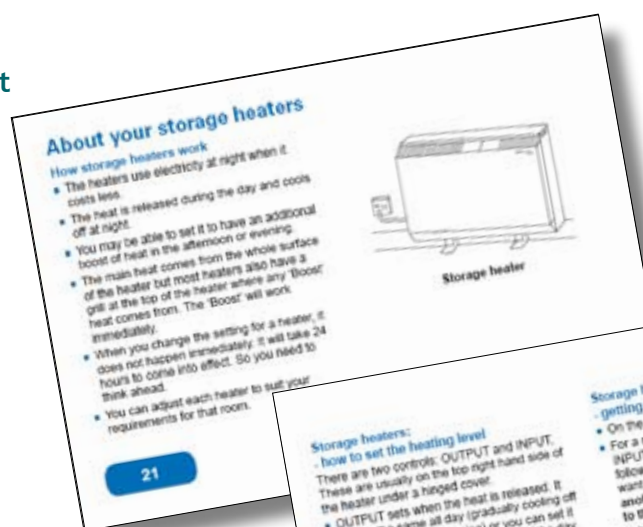

A 'pick and mix' process to reflect your fittings

Although we have already developed all the material for this book, this is not an off-the-shelf guide. We will build up a document specific to your organisation describing only the items you have fitted in your homes.

Once you have identified which fittings and systems you want included, we make up your own unique guide commissioning new illustrations where necessary and designing your own cover.

About Omfax

Omfax Systems is a leading provider of information solutions for customer services. We offer a portfolio of innovative products and services that bring unrivalled clarity, consistency and efficiency to communication with customers.

We work with housing associations, local authorities and facilities contractors as well as with a range of other organisations and agencies, such as schools, colleges and health care trusts.

Make information easy and choose Omfax for friendly, informed service.

Want to find out more?

Please email sales@omfax.co.uk or give us a call on 01869 242967

Omfax Systems Ltd
21 The Causeway
Bicester
Oxon OX26 6AN